TWIN 25 QUALIFYING NIGHTS (THURSDAY & FRIDAY)

MULTI-CAR QUALIFYING – On Thursday and Friday, after the random draw is split into Group A and Group B, Multi-Car Qualifying, using flights determined by the random draw at Inspection & Registration, will be used to seed the Heat Race lineups in staggered fashion.

A driver's fastest time from Thursday and Friday will be used as a tiebreaker, if necessary, for Saturday's lineups. If weather interrupts Multi-Car Qualifying, the Group's Heat Race lineups will be determined by their Timed Hot Laps.

HEAT RACES – The preliminary show format plans for four Heat Races of 10-laps in distance for each of Group A and Group B. The invert for the Heat Races will be four cars. Cars finishing 1st through 5th advance into their group's Twin 25 A-Feature and the balance of the finishers will advance into one of the Last Chance Showdowns. (If the car count requires six heats per group, transfers and format will be adjusted accordingly). Group A will contest Heats 1 through 4 to determine the first Twin 25 A-Feature. The cars not advancing will contest the first half of the Last Chance Showdowns. Group B will contest Heats 5 through 8 to determine the second Twin 25 A-Feature. The Group B cars not advancing will contest the second half of the Last Chance Showdowns.

LAST CHANCE SHOWDOWNS ($11,000 posted on both Thursday and Friday) – On each Twin 25 Qualifying Night, Last Chance Showdowns of 12 laps in distance will be contested. TWIN 25 LAP A-FEATURES ($105,600 posted on both Thursday and Friday) – Each preliminary night will run two A-Features of 25-laps, starting 24 cars. Assuming a four Heat Race format, starting positions 1 through 4 will be Heat Race winners, inverted by total points accumulated (low to high). Starting positions 5-8 will be Heat Race second place finishers, inverted by total points accumulated (low to high). Remaining Heat Race transfers will line straight up in positions 9 through 20.
